

ABSTRACT

Fluid within a reflection optical switch system is purified. Gettering structures are placed within a chamber within the reflection optical switch system. The gettering structures includes heating components which when 5 actuated attract impurities. The heating components within the gettering structures are turned on to getter out impurities from fluid within the chamber.